

BAUDER GETS THE NEW RSPB VISITOR CENTRE OFF TO A FLYING START

RSPB RESERVE, LAKENHEATH FEN

The 298 hectare site of the new RSPB Reserve at Lakenheath has been completely transformed. Using Heritage Lottery Funding, what was a carrot field unwelcoming to wildlife, is now a haven of reed beds and grazing marshes. Surrounded by poplar woodlands the site now plays host to a variety of birds including Marsh Harriers, Hobbies, Golden Orioles and Reed and Sedge Warblers.

The facilities and visitors centre were completely renovated, with the focal point being the new green roof which welcomes the public and stands as a visual testimony of the RSPB's environmental beliefs. Housed beneath the sedum is one of the most sustainable waterproofing systems available, Bauder's Thermoplan-T. This single ply system is a flexible polyolefin membrane, free from plasticisers, halogen and heavy metals. Additionally the membrane is 100% recyclable.
